

OPINION OF THE EUROPEAN CENTRAL BANK

of 16 March 2009

at the request of the Cypriot Ministry of Finance on a draft law amending the Securities and Cyprus Stock Exchange (Central Depository and Central Securities Registry) Laws of 1996 to 2008

(CON/2009/21)

Introduction and legal basis

On 20 February 2009, the European Central Bank (ECB) received a request from the Cypriot Ministry of Finance for an opinion on a draft law amending the Securities and Cyprus Stock Exchange (Central Securities Depository and Central Registry) Laws of 1996 to 2008 (hereinafter the 'draft law').

The ECB's competence to deliver an opinion is based on Article 105(4) of the Treaty establishing the European Community and on the fifth indent of Article 2(1) of Council Decision 98/415/EC of 29 June 1998 on the consultation of the European Central Bank by national authorities regarding draft legislative provisions¹, as the draft law relates to payment and settlement systems. In accordance with the first sentence of Article 17.5 of the Rules of Procedure of the European Central Bank, the Governing Council has adopted this opinion.

1. Purpose of the draft law

The ECB understands that the purpose of the draft law is to accommodate specific comments of the ECB made in two of its previous opinions on draft legal acts of relevance to the Cyprus Stock Exchange (CSE) and/or to the CSE's Central Depository and Central Securities Registry (CDCR)². In particular, and in line with recommendations previously made by the ECB³, the draft law proposes amendments to Sections 3 and 6 of the Securities and Cyprus Stock Exchange (Central Depository and Central Securities Registry) Laws of 1996 to 2008 (hereinafter the 'Basic Law'), which is intended to limit the scope of the CSE Council's decision-making powers to technical issues only⁴, thereby avoiding the risk of any undue interference with settlement finality-related issues, and to clarify the scope of the CSE's liability vis-à-vis its clients arising from the operation of the CDCR and with regard to the correct recording of stock exchange data and/or transactions. Subject to its observations below, the ECB is pleased to note the consulting authority's initiative to address expressly the abovementioned outstanding issues.

2. Specific observations

2.1 Observations on the proposed amendments to Section 6 of the Basic Law

2.1.1 The ECB understands that the objective of the proposed amendments to Section 6 of the Basic Law is to remove any remaining doubts as to the extent of the liability of the CSE Council arising from the operation of the CDCR. At present, subject to certain exceptions⁵, the CSE's liability is not the subject of comprehensive statutory regulation, either in the Basic Law or in the CSE Regulations. To the extent the proposed amendments to Section 6 would confirm that the CSE, in its capacity of owner and operator of the CDCR, is subject to the general principles of the law of tort in Cyprus (astika adikimata)⁶, whether by way of an action for negligence in the exercise of a statutory power or, alternatively, for breach of statutory duty giving rise to a private, civil cause of action, the ECB has no comments on the overall thrust of the proposed amendments to Section 6.

2.2 Observations on the proposed amendments to Section 3 of the Basic Law

2.2.1 The ECB has the following comments on Section 3 of the Basic Law, which currently provides that the CSE has the power to 'establish, manage and operate' the CDCR, as specified in the Basic Law and the Regulations and/or Regulatory Decisions issued thereunder. In line with the ECB's previous opinions and having regard to the implementation of the Settlement Finality Directive (SFD)⁷, Section 3 of the Basic Law would benefit from clarification to the effect that the CSE's decision-making powers relate to technical issues only, to be defined within the boundaries of the clearing and settlement framework laid down by national legislation. Moreover, and despite the fact that Sections 17A and 24 of the Basic Law already refer to the national implementation of the SFD⁸, the proposed amendments to Section 3 do not, in the ECB's view, go far enough towards addressing unequivocally the concerns previously expressed by the ECB in its opinions. As the differences between Section 3, as it currently stands, and a revised Section 3 would only be very slight and would require deductions to be made in order for conclusions to be drawn regarding the limits to the CSE Council's rule-making powers, the ECB would invite the consulting authority to reflect more expressly in the draft law itself the objectives conveyed in its accompanying explanatory note.
