The ECB’s Survey of Monetary Analysts – Review of Panel Composition

Presentation to Bond Market Contact Group (BMCG)

Prepared by DG/MP and DG/M
Rationale, structure and timeline of the SMA

- Knowledge gap identified in the euro area
  - Absence of timely and systematic information about market expectations for monetary policy parameters
  - Private surveys are certainly informative, but have a more limited coverage with a more ad-hoc approach
  - Other surveys (e.g. SPF and BLS) do not focus on monetary policy expectations

- Aim of the survey
  - Gathering "regular, comprehensive, structured and systematic information on market participants' expectations"

- Timeline
  - Survey conducted ahead of each Governing Council monetary policy meeting.
  - Questionnaire circulated to respondents 12 days before the Governing Council meeting
  - Aggregate results published on the ECB website on Friday the week after Governing Council meeting
Market intelligence gathering

SMA Expectations for policy parameters
(dates, €bn)

• SMA is an important element in ECB market intelligence gathering…
• combining information on financial sector expectations of monetary policy and macroeconomic developments in one coherently structured and regularly updated survey …
• … for the quality of the survey comprehensiveness and consistency of responses are crucial

Review of SMA composition

SMA participation: share of respondents participating and of responses received (number of submitted questionnaires, percentages)

- Critical mass of SMA respondents fully engaged with the survey and provide comprehensive responses...
- … with a minority submitting partially completed questionnaires …
- … and a few have taken a hiatus from the survey
- Several institutions have asked to become SMA respondent
- Panel composition review seeks to replace respondents who can’t provide complete and consistent answers with those who are able to do so.
