Manipulating or controlling fixes

At 1pm Michael, a Trader at Eurobank, accepts a large order from a client to buy GBP at the 1:15pm fix price. Michael accumulates directionally similar orders from other market participants. This is done in order to build Michael’s position and increase Michael’s ability to influence the 1:15pm fix price.

Michael uses the accumulated position to trade during the 1:15pm fix window in a manner designed to influence the price fixed.

Is Michael acting in compliance with the ACI FMA Model Code?

27.2 Treatment of FX Benchmark orders

- Dealers should not, whether by collusion or otherwise inappropriate sharing of information, influence the exchange rate.
- Dealers should not intentionally influence benchmark ‘fixings’ in an attempt to benefit from the fixing, whether directly or in respect of any Customer related flows at the underlying fixing.
- Dealers and sales persons should inform Customers in advance about external factors that could affect the benchmark rate, for example, macro data, illiquid market conditions and any other relevant event.

It might be hard to give a clear cut answer. Based on this, it is difficult to directly clear if he is acting in compliance with the model.

III. The Front Office

SELF ASSESSMENT QUESTION - 1 POINT

I am a dealer and my broker fails to conclude a transaction at the quoted price. I have to accept a lesser quote to neutralise my risk. What should I do?

- A1 “stuff” the broker and insist on a replacement name at the original price
- A2 accept a bank transfer compensation payment in favour of the bank or adjustment to brokerage bills
